"Little Johnny Jones" TUESDAY, JANUARY 4.

"Little Johnny Jones," one of the best, if not the very best, musical plays that have been contributed to the amusement world by that clever author-actor-composer, George M. Co-

The "Little Johnny Jones" company which is to be seen here has many of the original members. Then there is the usual Cohan chorus, fair of face and figure, and endowed with voices that can deliver the numerous Cohan stage business's with that snap an nerve typical of all Cohan produc

"Johnny Jones" has a well-defined plot, too, and a couple of love stories which it has been written. Then there are no less than twenty special song numbers—all from the pen of George M. Cohan, and therefore distinctly whistleable. Here are the names of a few that have and are become of the control of th names of a few that have and are being whistled and sung in almost every tongue: "They're All My Friends," "Mam'sella Fauchette," "Op in the Ansom," "Nesting in a New York Tree," "Yankee Doodle Boy," "Girls of the U.S. A.,"Captain of the Tenger, "Gard Rev. Seldom has there been a more perfect marine stage picture devised than that which composes the second act of Mr. Co han's comedy, which represents a pier at Southampton, with an ocean grey hound ready to sail. At the end of this act the ship leaves her dock, the stage is darkened, and in a moment the vessel is seen away in the oiling, brilliantly lighted. As the boat nears the center of the stage, a red white and blue rocket is sent up from her main deck, making an effect seldom shown in a playhouse. Another effective scene is the third act, which represents a certain portion of Chinatown in San Francisco. During this scene there is a march entitled "The March there is a march entitled of the 'Frisco Chinks." participated in by the entire male and female chorus the costuming of the same being most
